600 tons sugar and molasses and 100 tons Steamers are bringing in the shank ends of the crops as fast as the condition of the country roads will permit ransportation to the river. The Idlewild strived last evening from Chicot City, having been detained eighteen hours by fog. She leaves again this evening for Chicot City and the bends.

The Cons Millar departed last evening for Cincinnati with 416 bales cotton, 380 barrels oil, 14 bales rags, lot of scrap iron, lot of sundries, and a good passen-

A St. Louis dispatch, of yesterday, furnishes the following: "Captain Eads has just received a dispatch from Colonel Andrews, contractor for the jetties at the mouth of the Mississippi, announcing thirtsen feet of water through the crest of the bar at South Pass, being an increase of three feet in the past eight days. Seven feet additional of water will entitle Captain Ends to the first payment by the terms of his grant from congress.

Here's the way Sullivan, of the Vicksburg Herald tries to blacken our literary fame: "According to the Memphis AP-PEAL, the John B. Maude says the Evening Ledger broke a wrist below Vickeburg, etc." We reproduce the article as it appeared in our columns, punc tuatim et literatim: "The John B Maude, says the Evening Ledger, broke a wrist below Vicksburg, and is coming up on one wheel." Now, we are led to believe that points of punctuation are but fly-dirts in Sullivan's eye.
"Fawning scribblers" is a good expression; it's a good thing to say of river editors; it's a good term for one river editor to apply to another; it is very good perhaps to say of Memohis river editors; it may be good words for Vicksburg river editors to use when they want to scandalize their neighbors; indeed, it might be a good sentence for Jimmy Sullivan to write on ordinary occasions when he can find nothing for his trusty scissors to gobble, but this ch:onicler does not inderse the expression from Sullivan's pen applying to Memphis river editors. He should not forget that his origin as a journalist is due to the charitable tolerance of Memphis newspaper readers, which perhaps being strained beyond its utmost tension
